Don't Cry

Don't Cry

He managed to save her in time, but at a cost. He knew that his life would be on the line, but he still saved her. (Rated T for character death. May change rating if I create other chapters) Possibly a oneshot. Starco.

Star and Marco were fighting off Ludo's minions, again. Since Star couldn't use her wand after the "castle incident" she had to use physical attacks. She was fighting off so many monsters, she didn't notice Ludo take out a weapon he stole from another dimension. Ludo fired the weapon nearly hitting Star, she thought to herself "This is it. I'm gonna die." She closed her eyes. Remembering all the fun times she had. All memories. All fun moments. But she felt a sudden push, bringing her back to reality. Marco pushed her away, so that the beam would hit him instead.

"MARCO!" She quickly stood up ran to him. There was a burn mark on his chest. She knelt down next to Marco and put his head onto her lap. Tears were starting to fill her eyes. Then suddenly "cough" ughhhhh... S-Star..." Star looked at him and said "Marco. Y-You saved me." There were tears flowing down her cheeks. It felt like her heart was slashed into pieces. Marco wiped the tears from Star's right eye and said "Star... Don't cry." She couldn't stop crying. She answered "Marco... Please, I-I don't want t-to lose you. Please..." Marco coughed and said "Star... I'm sorry... I never told you... Th-that..." Star said "Tell m-me what? Marco said "I love you..." Before she could say anything, Marco used all of his remaining strength to lean forward and kiss Star, making Star remember all the times they had. She always had a crush on Oskar, but she knew she still had feelings for Marco. She just didn't know that he had feelings for her.

Then suddenly Marco laid back down, whispering "Goodbye Star..." And then his hands went cold, and now, Marco was gone. Star was shaking Marco, hoping it would wake him up.

"Marco?" Star yelled. But there was no answer.

"Marco?!"

No answer.

"Marco, please! Don't go! Please..."

Still no answer.

"Marco, I... I love you too." Tears dripped onto Marco's corpse.

Ludo, including his minions, all escaped and left through a portal. While Star was there, still staying by Marco's side. Still crying. Then, something inside Star snapped. Her breathing intensified. And as she felt the last of Marco's warmth leave his body, she felt a darkness creep into her soul until her heart turned black. The Star that was always happy, always lovable, always has a happy-go-lucky 'tude, was gone. She looked up into the sky, and vowed to rain devastation on Ludo and his army.

"I'm coming for you, Ludo."

The End... Or not?

Author's end note: If this fic gets good reviews, I might add a second chapter. Sorry for the feels. ;(byeeeeee!
